About the KPMG U.S. Foundation, Inc.
The KPMG U.S. Foundation, Inc. is focused on lifelong learning demonstrated through its mission to develop tomorrow’s business leaders, engaged citizens, and the communities KPMG serves.
A letter from Paul

From the Chair and CEO

A source of great pride and inspiration for me is our people’s unwavering commitment to serving our communities.

From robust KPMG Community Impact programs designed to provide equitable access to transformational learning opportunities for those in need, to the advancements we have made to increase environmental sustainability, to our commitment to inclusion and diversity, our values serve as the foundation that will lead us to a better future. No matter what challenges or uncertainties we face, our people are guided by the principles of doing what is right and what matters for the good of one another, those we serve, and the world at large.

Every day, I hear and see firsthand the power and impact of the generosity of our partners and professionals. This past year, our firm and our people provided more than $50 million in charitable donations, logged over 190,000 volunteer hours, and supported nearly 6,000 nonprofits. In collaboration with KPMG U.S. Foundation, Inc., we introduced a new Community Impact Grant program that funded 800 grants to nonprofit organizations where our people are involved and making a difference.

“No matter what challenges or uncertainties we face, our people are guided by the principles of doing what is right and what matters for the good of one another, those we serve, and the world at large.”

Paul Knopp
Chair and Chief Executive Officer, KPMG U.S.

Launched at the onset of COVID-19, this program helped many nonprofit organizations provide immediate health and economic assistance around rising needs like food insecurity and education. As we transitioned to become a completely remote workforce, our people continued to come together – virtually – to benefit the greater good, including sending meals to local healthcare workers, making face masks, organizing food drives, and coordinating charity bike rides. With support from the KPMG U.S. Foundation, Inc. we have directed more than $2 million into our communities to date in support of COVID-19 relief efforts.

We’ve also experienced an overwhelming demand from our people for action and accountability to create meaningful change in favor of equity, inclusion, and diversity. As one of my first acts as chair and CEO, I announced Accelerate 2025, an audacious five-year plan to tackle one essential dimension of the overall inclusion & diversity agenda: ensuring more individuals from underrepresented groups choose KPMG as their employer of choice, build careers at KPMG, and advance to leadership positions within our firm and within the profession by 2025. Our efforts will be propelled by bold leadership, informed by our values-driven perspective, and anchored by strong accountability.

Accelerate 2025 is an important element of our firm’s broader set of related commitments to inclusion and diversity, including a $500,000 donation to a new Racial Equity Action Fund aimed at combating racial inequity and supporting nonprofit organizations that are focused on racial justice, workforce development and employment, equitable access to quality education, and health and welfare.

As we look to the future, we must act with urgency, purpose, and stewardship to leave this firm and our communities better than we found them. Our actions are driven today by our vision of a better world tomorrow – where our people are fully engaged, inspired, and empowered; where KPMG stands as a stronger firm; and where our communities are thriving. In the pages that follow, you will see how our values are coming to life through our people and the lasting impact we are making ... together, for better.
Our Values

We have always been a firm driven by our values and purpose, but in 2019, KPMG refreshed our values to be more straightforward and impactful.

These five values reinforce our commitment to integrity, by consistently leading by example with high standards and morals; focusing on excellence, setting the standard for and executing with quality; celebrating courage, striving for innovation and bold thinking; bringing us together, embracing diversity, inclusion and empathy; and strengthening how we serve our markets, communities and society for better. Our collective community impact efforts draw inspiration from our values and help bring these values to life every day through the actions of our people.

Integrity
We do what is right.

Excellence
We never stop learning and improving.

Courage
We think and act boldly.

Together
We respect each other and draw strength from our differences.

For Better
We do what matters.
For a better and equitable tomorrow

We do what matters

For more than 120 years, we have worked hard to earn the trust of our employees and clients. As we navigate these extraordinary times, our KPMG values set our course. They remind us what we expect of one another and guide our decision-making, particularly when facing challenges. Our values ensure that we are at our best and bringing the best solutions to our clients.
Doing what matters, when it matters most

“Doing what matters, when it matters most, is core to our values and culture at KPMG. Our primary focus continues to be supporting and caring for our people, our clients, and the communities where we live and work.”

Rob Arning,
KPMG U.S. Foundation Chair

Responding to COVID-19

As we face these challenging times together, our first priority is our people. Nothing is more important than the safety and well-being of our employees and their loved ones. In March 2020, KPMG extended paid leave for our U.S. employees affected by COVID-19 to ensure they could take care of themselves or their dependents without worrying about work. The firm also closed all U.S. offices and issued a mandatory work-from-home policy to ensure the safety of our people.

In early April, KPMG LLP and KPMG U.S. Foundation, Inc. announced a $2 million commitment to support nonprofit organizations impacted by COVID-19, recognizing that for many of our nonprofit collaborators, providing on-the-ground relief is critical. Our communities will face the consequences of this pandemic differently – and our on-going donation approach is designed to ensure they can seek the type of help that benefits them the most.

As for the marketplace, we introduced a dynamic framework to help organizations implement approaches to bring employees safely back to workplaces. The framework includes a technology-enabled and data-driven assessment of COVID-19-related impacts within a community, along with an evaluation of the challenges that individuals and their employers may have to navigate as they re-enter the workplace. Built to fit any business’ specific realities and challenges, the framework assesses risk in local markets, addresses government and regulatory considerations, and provides a technology component to help executives make informed decisions. Learn more about how KPMG is working together to meet the unprecedented challenges of a rapidly changing landscape.

Our collaborative efforts provide equitable access to transformational learning opportunities to nurture talent and enrich lives. We believe that lifelong learning is a journey of growth where knowledge and skills make all the difference and we support students along their unique paths to success. Long-term programs, on-the-ground partnerships and strategic collaborations mark our continued success. KFFL: 2019 Summer Reading Challenge leads to epic results

Last summer, more than 60 KPMG offices across the nation hosted the KPMG Family for Literacy (KFFL): Read to Achieve Summer Reading Challenge, in conjunction with local summer-school programs and community organizations serving children in grades K-5. The motivation: to encourage children to read throughout their summer break and avoid the “summer slide,” where achievement levels fall lower when returning to school in the fall. We worked with First Book, our longtime collaborator, with whom we founded and continue to lead KFFL programs every year.

KFFL donated over 75,000 books and 35,000 school supplies items for children who need them most

Additionally, 4,000 students participated in the challenge reading more than 1.7 million minutes over the course of the four weeks

Empowering our people
We never stop learning and improving

Thinking and acting boldly takes courage. At KPMG, our culture thrives because we think big, pursuing innovative ideas and solutions. We aren’t afraid to ask for help and know that we are our best when we embrace our people’s diverse backgrounds, experiences, and capabilities. And above all, we foster an environment of inclusion, safety, and belonging – where we respect each other and draw strength from our differences. Read our Chair’s statement on diversity.

NAF builds on KPMG’s Day of Understanding training

KPMG has created and hosted a Day of Understanding course as an internal training to help our people understand the impact of societal differences. This critical discussion session has been rolled out across the firm. The day is designed to raise awareness about bias, increase empathy, and encourage our people to talk candidly about experiences, challenges, and successes around diversity and inclusion. In 2019, our national Inclusion and Diversity (I&D) team took this concept outside of KPMG to pay it forward and educate the next generation. They collaborated with nonprofit organization NAF – a national network of education, business, and community leaders who work together to ensure high school students are college, career, and future ready – to design a customized Day of Understanding called KPMG Talks Inclusion for their students.

The KPMG I&D team adapted our internal materials into a facilitated discussion relevant to high school students and created supplemental materials including a facilitator guide and panelist guide. We collaborated to help NAF students learn how to create an environment of trust, where everyone can feel comfortable being their authentic selves and empowered to engage in authentic conversations around who they are as individuals, the value of our differences, and how we can support each other in challenging times.

The response was overwhelmingly positive with numerous students acknowledging how the session changed their approach to networking and shifted their thinking about the power of inclusion and diversity. As one student shared: “I learned that inclusion is a culture that strives for equity and embraces, respects and values differences for all of our people... I will no longer allow stereotypes to stop me from doing something.”

“Our values and culture are at the core of all we do, and we work hard to encourage everyone to become an ally, a mentor, or a sponsor to someone different from us. Inclusion isn’t just a practice. It’s lived and demonstrated in our behaviors every day.”

We foster systemic change in business, education, and society

From helping to put books in the hands of young children in underserved communities, to empowering successful adults to become business professors who mentor the next generation of leaders, we leave a footprint across the educational landscape. The KPMG Foundation journey began with channeling matching gifts to universities, then moving to upgrade the quality of academic accounting research earning national recognition. And then turned to the still-pressing need for a diverse talent pipeline and diverse business school faculty for today’s global marketplace. Since then we have expanded and matured. We continue to partner with leading organizations who all share our goal of filling the talent pipeline for tomorrow’s challenges.

Celebrating 25 years with The PhD Project

KPMG Foundation has been the lead sponsor and administrator of The PhD Project since its inception in 1994. It was founded on the premise that significant advancements in workplace diversity could be made by increasing the diversity of business school faculty – fostering connections with students of all backgrounds by ensuring there are professors of color at the front of the classroom. The Project provides resources to help Black/African American, Latinx/Hispanic American and Native American people attain their business Ph.D. and become faculty mentors for the next generation of leaders.

With nearly $20 million invested and engagement with KPMG partners and employees, KPMG Foundation has significantly impacted The Project’s vision of attacking the root cause of minority underrepresentation in leadership positions. Diversifying the faculty attracts more minorities to study business and better prepares all students to function in a diverse workforce. Through The Project, participating professors interact with KPMG and the KPMG Foundation throughout their career in different ways impacting thousands of students.

Successes to date:

- 500% increase in Black/African American, Latinx/Hispanic American and Native American business school professors through The PhD Project since its inception
- 1,256 Black/African American, Latinx/Hispanic American and Native American students have earned a business Ph.D. since the project began
- 1,327 are teaching in U.S. colleges and universities today
- 277 Black/African American, Latinx/Hispanic American and Native American students currently enrolled in doctoral programs
